Archaeology (Studies in English), full-time, first cycle, limit: 20

First-cycle full-time studies in Archaeology are the only such course with instruction in English offered in Poland. The course programme extensively covers new trends in archaeological research and discusses archaeology's social functioning. This lays a foundation for studies which, being focused mostly on the Mediterranean archaeology, aim to provide students with elementary knowledge and practical skills enabling them to participate in excavations anywhere around the world.

An important role in the study programme is played by student field practices: surveys and excavations.

Detailed information on the study programme can be found at
